Universal search bar -- if you want to quickly find a class/group you're in or want to join without navigating to another page, just search for it.

Can also be used to find people you'd like to add as friends (so you can see their classes and get their updates in your feed).

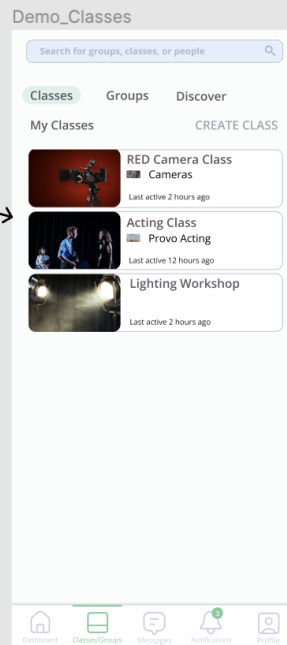

User's dashboard feed -- Shows relevant posts for them that they've subscribed to (posts from a class or group or friends). Can be used to make announcements of upcoming classes, do polls so teacher's can gauge how to prepare, ratings so users can find how their friends are liking their classes, etc.

Clicking on a post's main area will take you to the page of whoever made the post (the class/group/profile page).

4

Class Description

Students will learn how to affectively operate RED cameras, and develop all the necessary skills to create high quality footage

This course will allow you to become familiar with new and helpful ways of receiving films. Students will be able to evaluate and analyze films in a variety of contexts.

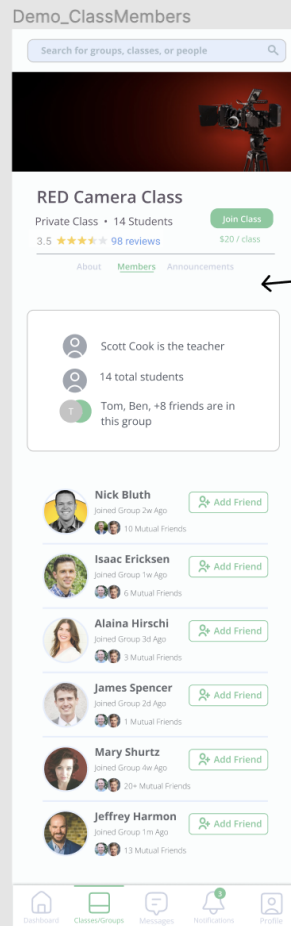

Here you will find a quick class description and the objectives for the class.

Objectives

In small teams, students will film a 10-minute short-film throughout the course using RED cameras.

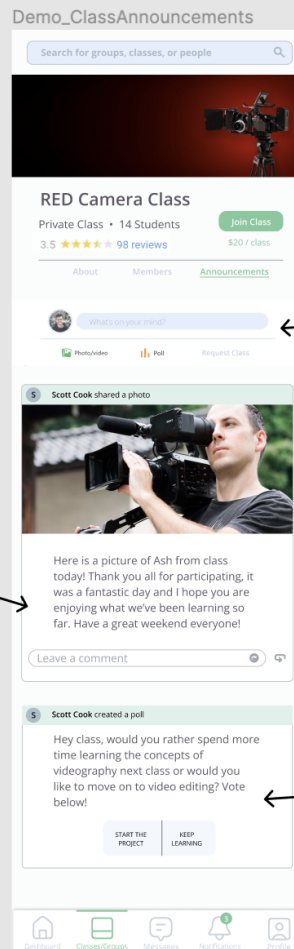

7

This page shows you friends that are in this class and others who are attending.

About me
Scott's first major directorial effort was The Sugarland Express (1974), with Goldie Hawn, a film that marked him as a rising star. It was his next effort, however, that made him an international superstar among directors: Jaws (1975). This classic shark attack tale started the tradition of the summer blockbuster or, at least, he was credited with starting the tradition. In 1978, Roads produced his first film, the forgettable I Wanna Hold Your Hand (1978), and followed that effort with Lined Cars (1980), a critically acclaimed, but mostly forgotten, Kurt Russell/Jack Warden comedy about devious used-car dealers. Roads hit gold yet one more time with Indiana Jones and the Raiders of the Lost Ark (1981), with Harrison Ford taking the part of Indiana Jones. Roads produced and directed two films in 1982. The first was Poltergeist (1982), but the highest-grossing movie of all time up to that point was the alien story E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial (1982). Roads also helped pioneer the practice of product placement as well.
